Executive Summary

Cure AHC exists to find a cure for Alternating Hemiplegia of Childhood, a rare disease affecting as many as 28,000 children worldwide. Less than two thousand have been diagnosed. There is no current cure.

In less than five years, our group of volunteers, many representing families with children with AHC, has raised three-quarters of a million dollars. By the end of 2017, we will have made over $600,000 in grants for significant research at Duke University, Columbia University and Aarhus University in Denmark.

We have also granted funds to establish an AHC clinic at Duke, to help families travel there for diagnosis and care, to enable family gatherings, to help sponsor an international symposium and to join in an international research consortium.

The research funded through these grants and through the international consortium, in which we are a member, has shown significant promise, so that we are encouraged to double and triple our efforts. A robust determined effort will be made to fund additional research.

In the next two years, we will enthusiastically work to raise an additional $3,000,000 for continued research and to assist families in diagnosis and participation in research. Success is getting closer and closer.

We will do this by enlarging our Board, creating a Development Council, creating memberships, increasing our volunteers, aggressively cultivating and soliciting additional major donors, increasing our grant applications and sponsoring a growing number of volunteer-led special events. In the second year of our plan, we hope to employ professional staff to help guide all of our volunteer efforts.

Success so far has motivated us to set higher, achievable goals. We are determined to find a Cure for AHC.

Introduction

Visiting a child with a diagnosis of Alternating Hemiplegia of Childhood (AHC) can be heartbreaking.

Parenting, living with, caring for, advocating for and funding research for a cure for a child with a diagnosis of Alternating Hemiplegia of Childhood are imperatives for the child's family.

Hundreds and hundreds of children and their parents all over America have this reality as a daily challenge. Many more children in the US and abroad are undiagnosed.

Parents, families, friends, colleagues and their foundations and companies have come together to form Cure AHC to seek a successful cure needed for our children to lead normal, healthy lives.

The main symptom of AHC is the temporary paralysis that can affect one or more parts of the body, or even the whole body. The episodes can last anywhere from a few minutes to days at a time.

These episodes can often be painful, with stiffening of the limbs. They can come without warning, although there are some triggers such as change in temperature, strenuous activity and stress.

Other symptoms include

- Movement problems like cerebral palsy
- Learning disabilities like autism
- Behavioral problems like ADHD
- Epilepsy in 50% of the cases approximately
- Other complications such as difficulty breathing, swallowing, and regulating body temperature

Nearly all adults with AHC currently do not live independently. Depending on the severity of their symptoms, some participate in society to a large degree, while others may be more home bound. Generally, the disease is not progressive, although some individuals experience deterioration in quality of life and abilities as they enter adulthood. A small percentage have died from seizures.

Classified as a “rare” disease, AHC affects more than 1 in 250,000 births, resulting from 7,000 to 28,000 predicted cases in the world, with less than 2000 children diagnosed.

In 2012, researchers at Duke University discovered the root cause of approximately 80% of the AHC cases in a mutation in the gene ATP1A3

Responding to this situation, a group of caring, energized parents with children diagnosed with AHC formed Cure AHC in 2013 to ultimately seek a cure while assisting each other, developing information, and promoting the establishment of a diagnostic clinic through organization, fundraising and advocacy.

Cure AHC envisions a world where Alternating Hemiplegia of Childhood no longer robs its sufferers of the chance to participate fully in life. We seek a time where no case goes undiagnosed for lack of awareness. We believe that collaboration is critical for those suffering now and for those yet to come.

CURE AHC

Founded in 2013, Cure AHC has doubled and redoubled interest and support of Cure AHC each year, emerging as the main hope for helping AHC patients and their families secure accurate diagnosis, clinical support and education as well as its main focus of funding the research needed to find a cure.

Cure AHC is a nonprofit organization incorporated under the laws of North Carolina and has been given 501 c (3) status as a private foundation by the IRS.

Cure AHC has developed a significant portfolio of resources and assets as an organization since its founding. These organizational strengths provide a foundation for Cure AHC that enables us to pursue a range of opportunities to fund basic and clinical research into AHC, provide support and educational awareness for AHC in the community affected by AHC and the wider general population.

Education and awareness permit Cure AHC to build a multi-phase approach to improving the pathways to management and cure of AHC. First, educational awareness will target AHC families to improve and increase access to clinical specialists. Second, Cure AHC believes this effort is critical to building relationships between specialists in the clinical setting with research specialists. Finally, the ultimate outcome is the linkage of AHC researchers to complete the circle of support that permits families to thrive, grow, and participate in clinical and biomedical research from an informed position.

To achieve our goals, our primary mission is to raise funds. Over the next two years we hope to raise $3,000,000 for research for a cure and assistance to families with diagnosis, education and support.

Keys Steps in Finding the Cure

Involve new families with children with the diagnosis, their extended family, friends, business associates and others.

Through events, personal solicitation, mail and social media, continue to increase the amounts of revenue raised from individuals and groups.

Increasingly apply for grants from corporations, foundations and government.

Assist patients and families to receive state-of-the-art diagnosis and care.

Educate and inform on AHC and advocate on behalf of Cure AHC.

Invest in cutting-edge research at leading Universities.

Participate in international symposia and consortia.

Supporting the Cure AHC Vision and Mission will support our efforts to develop a community of families, clinicians and researchers who collaborate and inform each other as we all progress to a Cure for AHC.

2017 marked 5 years since the breakthrough discovery from Duke University that ATP1A3 mutations cause 80% of the cases of alternating hemiplegia of childhood was published in Nature: Genetics. Since then there have been dozens of research publications on AHC (including a number funded by Cure AHC).

There is great hope and high probability that breakthroughs in treatment and cure of AHC will come in the next 5 to 10 years.

Revenue Goals

To achieve our program goals, our highest priority is to raise funds. Over the next two years we hope to raise $3,000,000 for research for a cure and assistance to families with diagnosis, education, support and advocacy.

Through philanthropy in 2018, our goal is to raise $1,000,000 from high net worth individuals, their foundations and donor-advised funds, institutional donors, foundation, corporate and government grants and special events. In addition to the focus on individuals and special events, we will add major efforts focused on foundations, corporations and government.

We will do so through stewardship of existing donors and cultivation and solicitation of new donors to raise over half of our goal. Added to this, successful receipt of grants will add another $300,000 with the remaining $200,000 netted through ten new grass roots fundraising events conducted by our volunteers.

In 2019, we hope to double the funds contributed in 2018. Individual gifts, the continuing major source of revenue, will have a goal of $1,100,000 with $600,000 in new and renewed grants, and $300,000 from special events conducted throughout the country. In addition, we will join with the research consortium to apply for additional grants for research and related activity with patients and families.

Success in reaching our financial goals will come through efforts by our current volunteers and our recruitment of new Board members, active solicitation of membership, new donors and grants and other steps spelled out below.

Research and Research Funding Strategy

Funding research to find the cure and to develop the treatments necessary are our primary goals.

Thus, the greatest proportion of funds will be used to fund research at Duke University, Columbia University, Aarhus University in Denmark and a variety of other institutions involved in a research consortium described below.

The grant strategy for research will involve continued funding for mouse models, genetic research, exploration of possible medications and novel compounds and the possible extension to stem cell experimentation. See The Research and Research Funding Strategy section below.

Our continuing research priority is the Mouse Model Study, also at Duke, which has developed a mouse model of AHC. With a $45,000 grant from Cure AHC, they plan to do the following:

- Study, by using brain tissue slices from affected animals in a mouse model developed at Duke as well as electrophysiological recordings in such live affected mice, the characteristics as well as the underlying electrochemical physiology of this disorder.
- Test medications that could potentially correct detected physiological abnormalities.

This mouse model carries the same most common mutation seen in the AHC human cases, thus findings from such a study could have direct relevance to the human condition.

The Duke researchers expect this research will lead to an understanding of the underlying mechanisms leading to AHC symptoms and to opportunities to develop effective therapies for AHC patients.

We will also continue to concentrate on patients and their families, as well as involving them in appropriate research. Funds raised by Cure AHC will allow us to continue to grant $50,000 annually to the AHC Clinic at Duke Children's Hospital, where much of the research is conducted. The Duke clinical program brings together specialists from various disciplines:

- Behavior
- Cognition & learning
- Motor Skill Development
- Nutrition
- Neurology
- And more

There are several benefits to AHC patients and their families that the Duke Clinic provides:

- Comprehensive and tailored evaluations of the problems of these children to help them and their families better identify the problems they have.
- A Customized Care Plan to coordinate improved ongoing care with the AHC patient's local care professionals to maximize quality of life.
- Collection of critical data for collaborative research to accelerate discoveries that may lead to the cure for AHC.
- Educating families and local caregivers on how to collect needed data in preparation for clinical trials when and if potential treatments/cures are discovered.

Cure AHC wants to make sure cost of procedures and travel are not barriers to anyone wishing to attend the clinic. We estimate that we will be able to help 17-50 families by reaching this goal.

Cure AHC Grants in the First Five Years

2013	2014	2015	2016	2017, projected
$6,000	45,000	229,400	171,000	209,000

The addition of a strategy to raise funds from foundations, corporations and government for research and work with individuals and their families will result in even closer collaboration with academic centers around the world.

Fortunately, Cure AHC is part of a global initiative that grew out of the 1st Symposium on ATP1A3 in Disease. At that time Cure AHC became affiliated with the International Consortium for the Research on Alternating Hemiplegia of Childhood, formed in 2012 to carry out collaborative research that led to the identification of the ATP1A3 gene as the main cause of AHC.

Institutions from the US, France, Britain, Netherlands, Belgium, China, Australia, Spain, Italy, Greece, Czech Republic, Slovakia, Poland, Germany and Serbia are members.

The Consortium involves clinicians, geneticists and researchers working at University centers in Europe, USA and Australia; it operates in close collaboration with health professionals and patient organizations, including Cure AHC. <http://iahcrc.net/consortium/members.html>

A major role for Cure AHC in this consortium, and thus to assist in raising grant funds, would be that of playing a significant role in bringing patients, their families and researchers and clinicians together to accomplish the vital tasks needed in clinical research.

This will add to the existing services provided by Cure AHC to families and children. This work may add a directory of clinicians specialized in the diagnosis and care of those with AHC.

This arrangement would have Cure AHC assisting researchers to locate, motivate and enlist patients in clinical research, a vital element of the process under FDA regulations to win approval of new drugs and methodologies and new uses of existing ones.

In this context, the following granting institutions may be interested in funding this function.

- The Eleanor Naylor Dana Charitable Trust is interested in children, medical research and biomedicine. It is located in the Seagram building in New York. Careful exploration, knowledge of one of the trustees or getting to others who know them, or the bank they represent, might produce results.
- The Doris Duke Charitable Foundation in New York is interested in Child Well-Being and Medical Research on an international basis.
- The Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies Foundation, in New Brunswick, N.J. is also interested in Children and Youth and Medical Research.
- The Bristol-Myers Squibb Foundation: 345 Park Avenue, 3rd Fl., New York, NY 10154-004. Interest in children's health. : John Damonti, president. 212.544-8483
<http://www.bms.com/foundation/pages/home.aspx>
- The Merck Company Foundation, Whitehorse Station, N.J., is interested in Children and Youth, Medical Research, and Biomedicine.
- Pfizer Medical Education Group, 235 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017healthcharitables@pfizer.com is interested in education and in rare diseases. Next deadline is September 1.
- Global Genes sponsors RARE patient impact grants. Projects are focused on impacting patients and their families. This may be the perfect opportunity to fund planned clinical projects.
- NIH Since passage in 2002 of the Rare Diseases Act of 2002, the National Institutes of Health established the Rare Diseases Clinical Research Network I (RDCRN I) to address the unique challenges of research on rare diseases. Currently the NIH funds 19 continuing and new clinical research consortia to strengthen the ongoing clinical research in rare diseases, in addition to a Data Management

Coordinating Center (DMCC) and ties to efforts in Translational Research. A Columbia University researcher is presently being funded. The NIH will only include researchers in their funding.

These organizations listed above are the best potential sources for exploration at the present time for funding for the special role played by Cure AHC within the consortium.

Constituency Development

We are continuously expanding the number of individuals, families, friends and organizations who share, or who come to share, the values embodied by Cure AHC as stated in our Mission, Vision and Values. A major objective is to promote this development, the single most important element in raising the visibility of Cure AHC and raising funds.

A major focus of Cure AHC will be to enlarge our individual, business, foundation, agency and related constituencies over the next three years. It will also coordinate with universities to which it has made research grants to insure cooperative effort in raising funds.

In individual constituency development, networks of each Board member are to be contacted to inform them more about AHC and our agency's Mission, to attend events, to volunteer, to join membership and to make charitable contributions--individually, family-wide, through donor advised funds and through family foundations.

As part of this development, individuals in businesses will be encouraged to get their companies involved in sponsorship and support of special events, in helping to increase professionalization in marketing and communications, in assisting in other specialized needs and in making annual corporate gifts.

Those Board members and volunteers connected to foundations and corporate foundations will help in opening doors and in encouraging grants to Cure AHC research, which will be described below.

Agencies, organizations and related groups should also be encouraged to play a role. For example, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs may be the source of small donations after presentations that may be arranged by Board members and volunteers. Religious organizations, e.g. churches, synagogues and mosques, traditionally re-grant 20% of the funds given to them by their congregations.

Board of Directors

The Board is the main source of volunteers to do fundraising for the organization as well as the policy-making group.

Our current Board of Directors has done exceptional service in the raising of funds for our goals. All volunteers have done a number of things to create opportunities for wider knowledge of AHC, for involving others, for hosting special fundraising events and for making generous contributions.

Over the next few years, we will enlarge our Board by four members focused on major fundraising activities, and, as Board member terms expire from term limits, we will invite them to become part of a Development Council to continue in their fundraising role.

All Board members are expected to serve as active volunteers in promoting the Mission of Cure AHC, to involve others, to sponsor fundraising events, to open doors to charitable sources and to make generous financial contributions.

The Board will do a self-evaluation annually covering Board and committee meetings attended, hours spent in volunteering for Cure AHC, funds given and gotten, contacts made, events sponsored, events attended and other activities relevant to our Mission.

Volunteers

In addition to the development Council, efforts will be made to recruit additional volunteers, upon whom Cure AHC has relied on for all of the special event work to date. Given the ambitious goals for all areas of revenue, a major emphasis will be on the recruitment, training and empowerment of volunteers.

As part of the volunteer effort, one member of the Board will be asked to serve as the volunteer coordinator, ensuring a strategic approach to this area.

Given extensive social media followers, this area will be the initial phase of volunteer recruitment. Personal networks of existing volunteers, involved families, Board members and others will also be recruited for volunteering in fund-raising projects of the organization.

Membership

The above activity will be enhanced by the formation of a Cure AHC membership, the linchpin to constituency development and the source of unrestricted funds.

All elements of the constituency, especially individuals, will be encouraged to take out membership on an annual or monthly sustaining basis through a high impact membership campaign.

Initially four categories of membership will be created: Full Membership, Silver Membership, Gold Membership and Platinum Membership. Payment may be made annually or monthly for each category: $100, $250, $500, and $1000 and above.

All membership funds will be restricted to operations and infrastructure needs of the organization. Part of this will encompass the printing of a brochure, a special website for members, use of a new database, a membership promotional campaign, and, hopefully, professional staffing in the second year.

The needed volunteers will come largely from the membership to staff the various special events occurring across the country and to assist in specialized ways. Individuals talented in law, accounting and other high level services are prime potential sources of such pro bono help. Others may be useful in getting to their employer foundations or friends with resources. Clearly, membership will constitute a major source of potential fund-raising personnel.

Organization

Cure AHC has relied on a wonderful group of Board members and volunteers to raise remarkable amounts of resources for our Mission.

Countless hours have been spent in fulfillment of all of our hopes. Board members have worked long hours, sacrificing other interests and responsibilities to get the job done. All of this fine work will continue and increase with added Board members, volunteers and members.

Given the growth of the organization, infrastructure and staff are also needed, not to replace the functions of the volunteer, but to have them do what they do best and to undergird them, support them, do research, keep records, write reports and newsletters---generally to manage the affairs of our organization. And to prevent burnout among our volunteers!!!

Cure AHC, as it grows, needs a more systematic method of keeping records, from a sophisticated CRM to grant search capability. We need finance infrastructure, digital record keeping, continuous website updates as well as social media updates—all working with volunteers but also giving continuous support to the entire growing structure of our agency.

Growing the membership is the major avenue through which unrestricted dollars become available for staff and infrastructure. In the next year, Cure AHC Board and volunteers will raise the goal of $1M. To increase that total in the next year will require organized effort in membership recruitment and staffing.

A goal of 500 members, recruited and stewarded for a high retention rate, will produce $100,000 needed for initial expenses in organizational operation, including hiring professional staff, that could, at first, be part-time, in the second year of this plan.

Staff will be principally responsible for working with Board and volunteers, managing the membership program, supporting the solicitors, assisting in grant research and application writing, doing the preparation work for the Family Gathering and Annual Meeting and generally handling all financial matters. Given a one-person staff, additional volunteers will be recruited to assist in recruiting volunteers and in assisting in office procedures. Reporting will be to the President on all matters and to the Treasurer on finances.
